

American Literary History

Hemispheric American Literary History

Guest Editors, Caroline F. Levander and Robert S. Levine

Introduction: Hemispheric American Literary History 397

Caroline F. Levander and Robert S. Levine

The Other Country: Mexico,
the United States, and the Gothic History of Conquest 406

Jesse Alemán

“A Complete Though Bloody Victory”:
Lorenzo de Zavala and the Transnational Paradoxes of Sovereignty 427

John-Michael Rivera

“I Went to the West Indies”: Race,
Place, and the Antebellum South 446

Matthew Pratt Guterl

The Gulf of Mexico System and the “Latinness” of New Orleans 468

Kirsten Silva Gruesz

Expropriating The Great South
and Exporting “Local Color”:
Global and Hemispheric Imaginaries of the First Reconstruction 496

Jennifer Rae Greeson

“Out of This World”: Islamic Irruptions
in the Literary Americas 521

Timothy Marr

“Yo también soy América”:

Langston Hughes Translated 550

Vera M. Kutzinski

The Promises and Perils of US
African-American Hemispherism:
Latin America in Martin Delany’s
Blake and Gail Jones’s Mosquito 579

Ifeoma C. K. Nwankwo

Rethinking Canadian and American
Nationality: Indigeneity and the 49th
Parallel in Thomas King 600

Jennifer Andrews and Priscilla L. Walton

Of Hemispheres and Other Spheres:
Navigating Karen Tei Yamashita’s
Literary World 618

Kandice Chuh

Commentary: The Transnational Turn and the Hemispheric Return 638

Claire F. Fox

Commentary: Hemispheric Partiality 648

Paul Giles

Notes on Contributors 656